JRN501: REPORTING & FACT-CHECKING

MOLLY YANITY, Ph.D. FALL 2022/CCE116 9-11:50 a.m., Mondays

EMAIL: molly.yanity@qu.edu

OFFICE PHONE: 203-582-5031

TWITTER: @mollyyanity | @QUjournalism

COURSE SITE: https://www.mollyyanity.com

OFFICE HOURS IN CCE 267

Tuesdays & Thursdays (10-11:30 a.m.)

In-person office hours are drop-in. You may also schedule a meeting on Zoom at my personal meeting room (873 158 5327), but I do request you make a confirmed appointment to meet digitally.

COURSE OVERVIEW

Welcome to JRN501: Reporting & Fact-Checking. You are embarking upon a graduate-level reporting and writing course that will emphasize the tools, tasks and tribulations behind GREAT STORYTELLING.

First, the tools.

To succeed in this course, the tools you will need are CURIOSITY, COURAGE, TIME AND EFFORT. You need curiosity to find great ideas and potential stories. You need courage to ask people about those ideas and stories. And, you need the time and effort to turn your ideas and someone's answers into great stories, while also paying keen attention to words and narrative.

Next, the tasks.

In order to learn about different narrative styles and the kinds of reporting required to employ those styles, you need READ different narrative styles and kinds of reporting. This is Step 1 – you have to read. If you haven't done the reading, don't even bother coming to class because you will waste your time and your classmates'. Speaking of reading, you will begin with vignettes about people you see every day. But, to find out about those people, you will need to know how to interview well, what kinds of questions to ask, what public documents you need to triangulate and verify information and, ultimately, you need to WRITE.

When it comes to writing, you will write several drafts of the same article. You will pay close attention to small details. You will work toward mastering the language of journalism.

Finally, the tribulations.

This is a discussion-based class; I hardly lecture in it. So, be prepared to contribute orally every week.

We will talk a lot about FAILING, about "what doesn't work." You will be given the opportunity to fail, to do a not-so-great job... wait. What is she talking about? This is a class and you want an "A." I know that. But, to figure out what works, you will need to go through what doesn't work. This course is as soft a landing as you will ever have and we will work through struggles, shortcomings and failures – together – in order to figure out how to report, to strike a voice and, ultimately, to tell a great story.

COVID-19, tragically, is also a tribulation. My attendance policy, course policies, etc. have changed a bit due to the pandemic – and my syllabuses are way longer! Further, being in public to observe and interview people is going to be more challenging. It will require you to observe health and safety standards. If you have an issue, concern or problem when it comes to field work, please meet with me individually and well before a deadline so we can find solutions.

PURPOSE

At the conclusion of this course, the assigned readings, class discussions and completed assignments should have helped you to be able to:

- Identify and appreciate great journalism
- Conduct strong interviews
- Understand where to find and how to get public documents
- Triangulate information for full verification
- Use that information to put together strong, narrative journalism articles

REQUIRED COURSE MATERIALS

AP Stylebook (or, digital subscription to APStylebook.com)

TEXTBOOK

GRADING

Your grade will be comprised of the total score of the following:

Homework assignments 30 points Attendance/Engagement 20 points

FINAL Article 50 points: Story pitch 10 points; First draft 10 points;

Second draft 10 points; Final 20 points

COURSE POLICIES

Attendance/Engagement

Attendance and full engagement are expected. This means:

- 1.) You must come to class.
- 2.) You must come to class prepared. (As previously mentioned, that you have done the reading, thought about it, prepared questions and discussion points.)
- 3.) This is a graduate course and respectful dialogue is expected. You will regularly present your writing, your ideas, your opinions. You may be challenged. Respect and civility are expected, but so are your voice and uniqueness.
- 4.) While in class, you need to be on task. If you are working on other materials or engaged in activities beyond the course, you may be asked to leave and that will count as an absence.
- 5.) Attendance and engagement points are awarded at my discretion but you will automatically receive ZERO POINTS if you miss more than one class *. IF YOU MISS CLASS, it is YOUR responsibility to make up work. Do not ask the professor what you missed; ask a classmate.

*COVID-19 PROCEDURES

The university's announced mode of delivery is in-person learning. Should that change, we may use Zoom, etc. But as of the start of the semester, you are expected to be in class.

There may be instances in which students or the professor must quarantine or become ill. In the former circumstance, the course may be available via Zoom. Doctor's notes confirming illnesses will also negate the one-absence policy. Deadlines will be adjusted on an individual basis.

CONTACTING PROFESSOR YANITY

The best way to reach me is via email (Molly.Yanity@qu.edu) or at my office phone 203-582-5031.

PLEASE DO NOT TEXT ME FOR CLASS-RELATED THINGS UNLESS IT IS AN EMERGENCY.

I'll respond within 24 hours on weekdays, although I'll usually get back to you much sooner. I routinely send out emails and may post announcements via Blackboard, so be sure to check your QU email frequently.

SYLLABUS REVISION DISCLAIMER

I reserve the right to revise the syllabus, class schedule or assignment guidelines at any point during the semester if I deem changes are necessary. I will inform you of any changes in class, via email and on the course website in a timely fashion. I'll also send and post any revised documents.

UNIVERSITY/DEPARTMENT LEARNING OUTCOMES

Quinnipiac University has established Essential Learning Outcomes and learning paradigms. They include Interpersonal Proficiencies: Written communication, oral communication, responsible citizenship, diversity awareness & sensitivity and social intelligence, and Intellectual Outcomes: Critical thinking & reasoning, scientific literacy, quantitative reasoning, information fluency, creative thinking and visual literacy. More on these outcomes is available here.

OFFICE OF STUDENT ACCESSIBILITY/BARRIERS TO LEARNING

Quinnipiac University is committed to creating a learning environment that meets the needs of its diverse student body. If you anticipate or experience any barriers to learning in this course, please feel welcome to discuss your concerns with me. If you have a disability, or think you may have a disability, you may also want to meet with the Office of Student Accessibility, to begin this conversation or to request reasonable accommodations. Quinnipiac University complies with the Americans with Disabilities Act and Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973.

Please contact the Office of Student Accessibility by emailing access@qu.edu, or by calling (203) 582-7600. If you have already been approved for accommodations through the Office of Student Accessibility, please meet with me so we can develop an implementation plan together.